Today
One Brave Chinese
Wild Day, Wild Street
Nitrogen Replacing Gold
Queer Germany

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE
CHANG TSUNG-CHANG, off to the front, waves good-by to his wife and children, promising to return victorious. Aeneas can only admire Chang's courage and nerve.
When he began marrying women he was a gang coolie, including Japanese, Koreans, Russians and Mongolians. Win or lose, he leaves Chinese.

WILD times in Wall Street yesterday. Speculators to hire the imagination of the public were announced, and the market was a scene of confusion.

AS AT rising prices changed hands
and 15,000 shares at a time, the market was forty-four minutes behind.

APPARENTLY federal reserve general will have to find some way to keep interest rates up to 10 or 12 percent. It seems hard to convince the buying public that American money is not good, that we are not a prosperous nation and that control of the money market should be in American hands.

GOLD has been the unit of value
since man first found strange, yellow grains washed down mountain streams, thousands of years ago.

Man struggled for gold and died because they couldn't take it and have murdered each other for it.

Now and science tells you, "Gold isn't always the unit of value."
Nitrogen will replace it, being the foundation of our food supply and the life of the world.

EVERY square mile of air above the surface carries twenty millions of nitrogen, enough to last the world 12 years.

Any way of getting that nitrogen out of the air cheaply would be marvelously important to farmers especially.

Henry Ford wanted to do it at Marion, Ohio, but the fertilizer trust wouldn't let him.

THEY do things differently in the German republic.
Hans Sturmer Jr., whose father was the first man in Germany, accused of tampering with Germany's bonds, is not in jail, but he is in jail.

And for the present he will stay
there.

IT will amaze our high-spirited Americans that steal a government oil tank. They are on their private planes, never saw a jail and probably never will see one.

ANOTHER step in flying, nine airmen starting a non-stop flight from Atlantic to the Pacific. Some will make the flight, some fail. This is before you are much older flights than the "every hour on the hour."

THE circus air people, backed by important bankers, have organized a "Circus Service," airplane taxis to take you anywhere, whenever you want to—enabling you to connect with a fast express train that left before you were quite ready, to overtake an express train 500 miles out.

DAVEY BOOKED FOR TALK AT COUNTY FAIR

Democratic Nominee for Governor Accepts Invitation from Local Board
ON PROGRAM FRIDAY

Previous Engagements Prevent
Cooper, G. O. P. Candidate, from Coming

Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, will speak at the Marion county fair Friday afternoon, according to announcement today by Roland L. Leeper, fair board secretary.

The Democratic nominee notified Leeper today that he would be able to appear here Friday. Davey will come to Marion from Columbus, according to present plans.

While no definite time has been set for Davey's address, it is likely that he will appear at the grandstand about 1 o'clock, Leeper said today. The address will not be given, according to Leeper, until the crowd has arrived for the races.

Davey is appearing here on invitation from the fair board. Both Davey and Myers Y. Cooper, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, were invited to address fair crowds. Due to previous engagements Cooper was unable to accept the invitation to appear here.

Will Be "Davey Day"
Friday has been designated as Davey day at the fair by officials.

While no definite figures were obtainable on yesterday's attendance, officials estimated that 2,000 persons were on the grounds during the afternoon and 3,000 at night. There were more persons on the grounds this morning than yesterday morning.

While the Red Cross first aid station has administered a few minor treatments there has been no emergency call of any consequence, nurses in charge of the station said this morning.

Schools To Close
All schools in the city, including both public and parochial will close all day Friday in order that pupils and teachers may have an opportunity to attend the fair. Offices in the courthouse will close yesterday afternoon and will be closed today afternoon and Friday afternoon. The city library closed at noon today and will remain closed until 6 o'clock tonight. The library will observe the same closing hours Friday, according to the city superintendent.

Closing of county schools is optional with the various boards of education, according to information from the office of the county superintendent.

Pleasant township schools will be closed today and Friday. The majority of the schools will be closed only Friday, it was stated.

Contest Leaders
The six contestants who staged yesterday's fashion show, who received the greatest number of votes in the first day's balloting were announced today by directors of the show. The six highest were Miss Buick, Miss DeSoto, Miss Hymobile, Miss Nash, Miss Dixmonth, and Miss Studebaker. They are to receive an additional 100 votes.

Awards of prizes to the winners will be made at the Palace theater Friday night by Police Prosecutor Carter Patton.

lieved to be the daughter of Mrs.
Jones.

A seven-year-old boy, also believed to be the son of the Mainords, was in Mercy hospital, with a fractured skull and both legs fractured. He is not expected to live.

All eight were in a small sedan,
which was struck by a westbound freight train at the Broadway crossing of the Grand Trunk, near Sixty-Fifth st.

They were believed going to Flint,
Mich., to meet Mrs. Jones' husband
there.

The train went eight blocks before it was able to stop. All except Pollock were killed instantly. He died on the way to the hospital.

Pageant Scores as Feature Attraction of County Fair

MARION county's history from the dawn of creation to the influx of the "foreigner" to replace the Red Man, was portrayed for approximately 3,000 Marion county fair visitors last night. The pageant, one of the chief attractions at the fair, will be presented again tonight.

The cast, including about 300 characters, was selected from Marion, Prospect, Wadley, Green
Camp, Pleasant township, Caldwell and Morral.

The pageant, so far, has proven the most interesting attraction at the fair, if the size of the crowd can be taken as an indication. The audience last night far exceeded the crowd at the afternoon races,
when the speed program opened.
Not were there any of the disappointment on the part of those who were present for the initial performance. C. F. Thomas,

When Apron Catches
Fire in Stove

Mrs. Jake Garverick, 72 years old, is in a critical condition at her home at West Point, from burns sustained about 10 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Garverick was working in her kitchen near an all stove when her apron caught fire.

Efforts to beat out the flame in the kitchen failed and the woman ran scrambling into the yard and attempted to extinguish her blazing clothes by rolling in the grass.

While she extended the flaming clothing she was burned severely about the body and face.

Neighbors heard Mrs. Garverick screaming and came to her assistance.
She was alone when the mishap occurred.

West Point is about four miles south east of Marion in Morrow county.

Acid Stomach

Is Dangerous

Sufferers from Indigestion Should CUT THIS OUT

Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by "too much acid" in the stomach.

The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or dangerous stomach ulcers. Never does an acid stomach with again or artificial digestants that give merely temporary relief. You must get at the cause.

The best plan is to neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bismarck Magnesia. Then not only will the pain and sourness quickly vanish but your food will digest properly as nature intended.

Be sure to use genuine Bismarck Magnesia. There is nothing better to settle an upset acid stomach. You feel fine in five minutes. Henney & Cooper and reliable druggists everywhere say it must give complete satisfaction or its small cost will be returned. Bismarck Magnesia comes in both powder and convenient tablet form. Handy to carry about, easy to use, and a laxative, and for making a disordered stomach do its duty, it works like a charm.—Adv.

Smith Brings "Whispering Campaign" Against Him Into Open

NAILS ASSERTION HE WAS INTOXICATED

Democratic Nominee Seizes Opportunity When He Gets Letter

CITES WOMAN'S NOTE

Republican Senator Furnishes Refutation That Governor Was Drunk at Syracuse

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Syracuse, Sept. 13.—The "whispering campaign" against Gov. Alfred E. Smith, which has been growing steadily since his nomination, was spectacularly opened today by Governor Smith's letter to the executive committee of the Democratic party.

The governor has been accused of having been intoxicated at the time of his speech at Syracuse. They have circulated reports by word of mouth.

Under the caption "Nailing a Lie in the Whispering Campaign," and signed "By Alfred E. Smith," the governor made the whole matter public today at the executive office.

Boiled down to its essentials, the governor's statement set forth the following story:

On Sept. 6, W. A. Keenan, member of a firm of income tax specialists at Parkersburg, W. Va., addressed a letter to "Democratic Headquarters," Syracuse, N. Y., in which he called attention to the whispering campaign being waged against Governor Smith.

"A lady of this city, formerly a resident of Syracuse, and very prominent socially here," Keenan's letter said, "has a letter from Mrs. Florence Sanford, whom she advises is the wife of H. D. Sanford of Syracuse, and who is reported to be prominent there. In this letter the lady sets out the statement that on the occasion of Governor Smith's visit to the state fair at Syracuse, he occupied a box next to the one occupied by Mrs. Sanford."

Under the caption "Nailing a Lie in the Whispering Campaign," and signed "By Alfred E. Smith," the governor made the whole matter public today at the executive office.

They have concerned not only his religion, but have reflected upon members of his family and upon his personal habits as well. He has fairly tickled to strike some telling blow at all this talk, but the fact that it was always anonymous and that none of the tales ever reached the printed stage made it a difficult matter to get at. But he has been on the alert for some opportunity to "blow these things out of the water" as he himself expressed it.

to Governor Smith. Although a week has elapsed, Governor Smith said to day he had not received it.

Kelley said Mrs. Sanford told him she had a letter from Mrs. Bauer, in which she told me a lot of things were being said in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Later Kelley advised Governor Smith again that Mrs. Sanford "positively" denied writing any such "letter."

Then Governor Smith telephoned to Keenan at Parkersburg, asked him to see Mrs. Bauer and if possible obtain the letter in question. Keenan said Mrs. Bauer, he reported, but he didn't get the letter. He telegraphed the governor on Sunday as follows:

"Impossible to get Sanford letter. Party here says same is lost or destroyed. Believe she must have got instructions from Syracuse to destroy or not disclose. However, she does not deny statement in letter, but has quit talking."

There the matter rested today, save for Governor Smith's comments.

President Coolidge Offers to Make Campaign Address For Nominee Herbert Hoover

Republican Radio Hour Will Begin Friday Night and Continue Each Night Except Sunday, Until End of Drive in November

Washington, Sept. 13.—The nature of President Coolidge's participation in the campaign to elect Herbert Hoover as his successor in the White House today was under consideration at Republican headquarters.

The president was understood to have offered to make a speech in behalf of Hoover. Where it will be delivered and under what circumstances, naturally, will be left to the chief executive's decision. He, however, expressed a willingness to help Hoover and the two established a very apparent "entente cordiale" at a long White House conference yesterday afternoon.

Rumors were current here for several days that the president would open the Republican party's radio hour Friday night but these were terminated when headquarters announced other plans. The Republican national committee will use a chain of 24 broadcasting stations for half an hour each night excepting Sundays, from Friday until the end of the campaign.

There were different views at headquarters regarding the best means of using the president's support of Hoover's candidacy. It was argued that a radio speech in behalf of Hoover's candidacy. It was argued that a radio speech in behalf of Hoover's candidacy. It was argued that a radio speech in behalf of Hoover's candidacy.

There was another suggestion that the president accept one of the hundreds of personal letters, written him about Hoover's candidacy, and then make his reply public. The letter could be read over the radio and given the same newspaper publicity as on a speech.

A third plan suggested, was to have the president accept one of the hundreds of personal letters, written him about Hoover's candidacy, and then make his reply public. The letter could be read over the radio and given the same newspaper publicity as on a speech.

TENSENESS PREVAILS THROUGHOUT SPAIN

Republican and Military Leaders Still Hold Firm Grip; Delay Action

Madrid, Sept. 13.—Despite the numerous arrests made throughout Spain and the communique issued by the government which virtually stated that a revolutionary attempt had been nipped in the bud, an undercurrent of tenseness prevailed all over the country today.

There are reports that the Republican and military leaders behind the revolution still hold a firm, countrywide grip and are only delaying action until they think the opportunity is favorable.

It is said that the revolutionary leaders prefer waiting until they can effect a quick and bloodless overthrow of the dictator, Primo de Rivera, and his government.

director, and J. R. Nutt, treasurer, will speak, each explaining how his department is functioning in the campaign. Republican leaders said the program would reveal how a presidential campaign is conducted.

Hoover leaders meanwhile were interested in reports from the south. Mrs. M. M. Caldwell, national committee woman from Virginia, reported that the Republicans had a "hard fight ahead" in her state, and that the "situation is hopeful" for a Republican victory. She said the women of the state much prefer the decisive vote and that majority of them were for Hoover.

RICE DEFEATS C. D. & M., 12 TO 1

EAGLES AND CALVARY MEET SECOND TIME FRIDAY NIGHT

Electric's Lone Run in Sixth Inning Before Game Is Called

BY KARL R. MELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

DARKNESS, that old bugaboo of the Eagles recreation ball team, descended upon the Commercial league champions and prevented Roy Rice from blanking the C. D. & M. in a little world series game at Lincoln park last night. Yes, the Eagles won and by a score of 12 to 1.

The race for the championship of Marion has now settled down to two teams. To date Calvary holds the edge by virtue of a 4 to 2 defeat over the Eagles Monday night. The two teams will tangle Friday night at 8:10 o'clock in a contest that will either settle the title holder or prolong the series in case the lodgment should win.

The Electric's lone run came in the sixth inning with two men down. The contest should have been called at the end of the fifth as the Eagles were so far ahead that it practically was an impossibility for the power company nine to catch them in spite of the darkness. As a matter of fact, Rice deserves to be credited with a shutout game as it was nearly impossible for a player to see the ball on the ground or in the air.

Use Three Pitchers

Three C. D. & M. hurlers were knocked all over the lot before the contest was finally called. Applegett was started on the mound and lasted just three and one-third innings before being relieved by Kochensperger. Applegett did fairly well in the first two frames holding the Eagles hitless and allowing one walk. Seanders started the third with a single while Rice fled out to short. Roseberry walked and Seanders scored on Lattimore's double to center. With two men on the sacks, Bacon crashed out a homer to center field fence.

The C. D. & M. hurler got off to a bad start in the fourth when two men were walked. With bases full and no outs Kochensperger was sent in. An error at second scored a run. Lattimore smashed out a double and Bacon followed with a triple to clean the bases. Price's double scored Bacon and the former crossed the plate on Eagle's single making seven runs for the inning.

Eagles Score in Fifth

The Eagles scored one in the fifth on a pair of errors and a single. Fetter was used by the Electric in the final frame but the game was lost. Kelley scored the lone C. D. & M. run in the sixth with only one hit.

SHARROCK RELEASED BY MARION EAGLES

Locals Preparing for Tough Opposition from Colored Team Sunday

The last of the old guard is gone. That was the announcement made today by the management of the Marion Eagles in getting ready for one of the toughest contests of the season at Lincoln park Sunday afternoon against the Columbus Keystone colored champions of Ohio.

A new outfielder will be brought into the game replacing Sailor Sharrock in right field. The Marlon has been hitting well at times this year but has failed to deliver when necessary. He is poor in covering the field.

Two changes have been made in the outfield during the past two weeks. Glenn Price was released from left last week and a new player brought in.

Pine will be at his old shortstop position Sunday with Bryant doing the hurling. Tomorrow, who is said by fans to be the sweetest catcher that has appeared this season, will be behind the plate.

175,000 SEE FOUR-GAME SERIES AT YANKEE FIELD

New York, Sept. 13.—Connie Mack took his Athletics away from New York with a broken heart, but with a bulging wallet. The A's received $50,000 as their share of the gate receipts for the four-game series, which drew a total of 175,000 customers. This is the largest check ever paid a club for a series, and the total attendance was the largest for any series ever played in baseball, with the exception of a world's series.

WOOSTER STABLES TAKE LION'S SHARE OF PURSES AT FAIR

Vic Donahey Wins 2:16 Pace in Straight Heats To Set Best Time

TWO Marion horses, fared rather poorly in the opening day of the Marion County Fair race program Wednesday afternoon. The best either could do was take third money in two heats.

Three events were run off with Vic Donahey, Brinkerhoff up, and Pennzoid Boy driven by Ray taking races in straight heats. The former won the 2:16 pace, while Pennzoid Boy took the 2:22 purse.

Arthur Harvester was the winner of the classified trot for three-year-olds, taking the first two heats. He finished second to Hollywood Direct in the final round.

The Brinkerhoff stables of Wooster took a lion's share of $1,050 in purses by finishing within the money in all three races. Vic Donahey took three firsts, Kunkle three seconds and Hollywood Direct two seconds and one first.

MAX BISHOP SMACKS OUT HOMER TO GIVE A'S VICTORY IN NINE

Cards Beat Reds To Increase Lead Over New York Giants

BY LES CONKLIN
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Athletics didn't have a prayer until Bishop gave them one. Yes, Max Bishop saved the Mackmen from a complete rout when his homer in the ninth downed the Yankees, 4 to 3.

It was about time that a member of the turned the trick.

New York's lead of a game, half doesn't look so big today as two teams head west, because they have been winning on the road. The Yankees have frequently run trouble in the west. The Huguenots taken 16 out of 22 games with Athletics, but have no Indian series western teams.

Bishop's homer off Hoyt came the Yankees had twice tied the game. Orvill and Walberg for the A's.

Today the Cubs get their final at the Cardinals, who increased lead over the Giants to three yesterday by musing out Clinton to 1. Old Pete Alexander turned trick, despite the fact that his made only five hits off Donohue Kelp.

Brooklyn swamped the Philadelphia in the only other game. The Robins collected 17 hits. Clark held the Phils to five.

PLAN TO CO-OPERATE IN DRIVE FOR VOTES

Central Labor Union To Join Junior C. of C. in Non- Partisan Campaign

To prevent duplication of plans and effort, the Marion Central Labor union will work in cooperation with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in starting a get-out-the-vote campaign in Marion county for the November election. It was announced at a meeting of the union last night.

A committee headed by Russell Peterson has been named to meet with the Junior Chamber of Commerce to make plans for the campaign. It was stated. All efforts of the two groups in influencing voters to go to the polls will be non-partisan.

An effort is being made by the labor group to obtain Thomas J. Donnelly, legislative agent and secretary-treasurer of the Ohio State Federation of Labor to speak in Marion on the subject of the voting franchise with an object to encourage its use. The labor union for several years has carried on an educational campaign to get its membership to vote. This year, however, its efforts will not be confined to members of the union, but will include all citizens.

A circular sent out by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, asking that labor unions of the country support the federal election's non-partisan political policy, was read at the meeting last night. Several railway organization chairmen who are in Marion for a quarterly meeting, attended the session of the Central Labor union. A short talk was given by Louis Mazzanti, of Newark, N. J., chairman of the Car-men's organization.

R. K. Huppert, secretary of the Central Labor union, will attend the convention of the Ohio State Federation of Labor which will be held in Columbus, starting Sept. 17. It was announced. Don R. Clark, president of the Central union will be unable to attend the convention.

The next meeting of the Central Labor union will be held Sept. 19.

FORMER SUFFERER HIGHLY INDORSES THE NEW KONJOLA
Invigorated and Strengthened Her Entire System; Now Enjoys Glorious Health.

MRS. ELIZABETH HARRISON

"Konjola really surprised me the way it went to the source of all my health troubles," said Mrs. Elizabeth Harrison, 2115 Harvey Avenue, Avondale, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"About three years ago I suffered from a nervous breakdown and from that time on I got steadily worse. Everything I ate seemed to sour and form gas on my stomach. I was subject to splitting headaches and nauseating dizzy spells that made life miserable for me. I was really wondering if I would ever get well."

"I had a great deal of confidence in Konjola when I started on the treatment and it was certainly rewarded because this medicine restored my health in every way. My nerves are so much stronger that I am never bothered with them and my stomach now digests whatever I eat. I am so much better I can hardly realize my health was in such a rundown condition and I owe it all to Konjola."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this vicinity have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump and Rame Pharmacy and is also being sold by all the best druggists throughout this section.—Adv.

High Blood Pressure
Shortens Your Life
How to Stop it—Read This

It may surprise you to know high blood pressure is so serious that insurance companies refuse to issue policies to those who have it. All because it shortens life.

High blood pressure gives little warning and until certain symptoms take hold, you do not know it. They are head pain, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness and nervousness.

Often one bottle of Norma will bring reduction in blood pressure and stop the symptoms which distress and worry you.

Norma is a physician's prescription. It worked so wonderfully in his personal practice that it has now been placed in drug stores so that people everywhere can obtain it. Check the uncertainty of high blood pressure by reducing it with Norma.

Success in love, in business, in work, or in life is not a fluke, a chance or a gamble. You don't "win" it—you EARN it; and sooner or later you've got to make your daily payments. FATE is an inexorable installment collector!

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there is almost daily need of its comfort. And any night you find your very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved, or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

You can't tell where the girl ends and the coat begins on this nifty ensemble because the coat is lined with the same material as the frock—tan chiffon. This costume is doubly smart since it combines brown velvet with printed tan chiffon. Tan ribbon belt worn at the natural waistline further carries out the color scheme, as does the tan hat and tan and brown pumps.

OF A
Married Woman
BY HELEN ROWLAND
A DOLLAR DOWN!

The greatest national figure in this country today is the installment collector!

We are a "dollar down" nation! We are all living on the "first payment" plan!

The fact that a man drives an imported car and a woman wears a subtle and real pearls is not a sign that they have a lot of money. It's a sign that they OWE a lot of money!

"Ah, take the cash and let the credit go!" said old Omar. But, nowadays, we take all the credit we can get, and

We even make love, start a business career, and get married on the "first payment" plan. And it won't "GOT" unless you keep up the daily installments of consideration, love, understanding and self-sacrifice. Marriage is no Summer bargain-sale.

It takes oil and fuel and concentration to keep a marriage running along smoothly, just as it does to keep a car running smoothly.

These carefree adventures who rush into matrimony on the strength of a momentary impulse or a temporary attraction soon find that the engine of love has gone dead. It takes a LOT of love, a LOT of congeniality, a LOT of forbearance—and THEN some, to keep a marriage from stalling after the first dalliance and romance have worn off.

Success in love, in business, in work, or in life is not a fluke, a chance or a gamble. You don't "win" it—you EARN it; and sooner or later you've got to make your daily payments. FATE is an inexorable installment collector!

Beauty and the Million

DRAMATIC STORY OF AMAZING ADVENTURE

BY WILLIAM ALMON WOLFF

THE STORY SO FAR

Rehshaw, after several days of the far west, arrived in the old city, but with no money. He registers at a hotel, buys expensive suits and goes to the theatre. By accident he meets Irene Delmar, a girl of New York. In the theatre she loses track of her mother—and Jim Rehshaw rescues her.

Rehshaw tells her he is going to have 50 or 60 thousand dollars. Irene asks him to tell her his experience in the west.

Rehshaw tells her his uncle had sent him to college and upon his working in his factory, which he quit in the morning. He is to return the next day and to call on her family in New York.

Rehshaw had been one of the great men of the world.

Rehshaw had been one of the great men of the world.

Rehshaw had been one of the great men of the world.

Rehshaw had been one of the great men of the world.

Rehshaw had been one of the great men of the world.

Then, speeding eastward, across Indiana, Ohio, there had long hours in the Delmar car. Bridge, played well, but as one does who has learned a game from books, but Irene was patient with him; her father was a gambler.

"Play badly? My dear boy, I like your game," said Mr. Delmar. "You ought to," said Irene, dryly. "I never saw you win before! He's the world's worst player, Jim! Never mind—you'll get it all back."

She called him Jim as usually as she had done everything else in the brief time he had known her—but she saw his life of pleasure and surprise.

"Life's too short for formality—or else too long for anything else," she explained. "I like you—I'm going to see a lot of you. Naturally we'll use one another's first names. Why not now?"

Why not, indeed? He had no answer. He was well pleased.

But now, with the morning, a reaction had set in. He could not go back to the Delmar car so early; they wouldn't want to see him; they were asleep, probably, anyway. And the largeness of his assumptions troubled him a little. He had been taking a good deal for granted.

He had always believed that his uncle was a rich man; that the business his father had helped to build had become a vast, profitable one. He was vague about details, but he had an impression that was time use of the factory for certain phases of the munitions work had brought huge profits. Still, he didn't know. He had set his inheritance, without real evidence to back his estimate, at not less than a million dollars. Suppose he were wrong? Suppose it weren't a fifth, a tenth, of that great sum? He ought to have made sure before he talked.

And then, at the very end, when the train was in the city itself, when the grim old walls of the Park av. tunnel had closed about it and about him, Jim was conscious of something lacking. There was, somehow, for all his long anticipation of this arrival in New York, no thrill about it; he was vaguely, but none the less keenly disappointed.

The actual approach was wrong—this coming through a tunnel. He almost wished he'd managed as one did in the old days—landed in New Jersey, crossed the Hudson on a ferry-boat, seen the marvelous, serrated skyline, with its towers touching the very clouds. This was casual, unromantic, prosaic, flat.

He remembered other cities he had visited. Coming into Pittsburgh, at night—with the blast furnaces like the flames of Dante's hell. Chicago owned the majestic and mysterious network of railway tracks, the nerve centre of the republic. He had gone down to San Francisco from the north, once, in the late afternoon, and seen the sun setting, beyond the Golden Gate, gilding the mountains of the bay.

Yet it was silly, he knew, for him to let anything depress him, cast him down, this morning—of all the mornings he had ever known! His old, long dream of wealth had come true at last. Against temptations that had of him been almost too much for him, he had preserved his freedom. He had resisted every attempt—and many had been made—to induce him to alter the plan upon which, ever since he had walked out of his uncle's home, he had built his life.

No one except Irene had ever understood the reason he had done as he had. The others had pointed out, sensibly enough, that his heritage would come to him, no matter what he did. Had argued that to settle down, build up success for himself, marry, establish a home, with wife and children, would only serve to make his reward the greater when, finally, it came.

But he had stuck to his determination. Irene saw how he had felt. Somehow, for years, he had regarded himself as a cheat. Others had tried to force him to live according to their lights, their ideas. That had been his uncle's wish. Circumstances had, for all these years, conspired to defeat his desire to live to the utmost the life he desired. But, in the end, he was the victor. He hadn't yielded to the temptations to do the easy thing; he was free, now, in the fullest sense of the word, to follow his own bent.

Moreover, his meeting with Irene Delmar, his acceptance by her parents, was a stroke of fortune such as he had never dared to dream of. He wanted most, to win what people called a social position. Money alone, he had always understood, was not enough to insure that. But the living of the Delmars was, with such sponsors it would be easy for him to make a place for himself in the world in which he aspired to live.

He wasn't a snob; never was there a man with less of the snob in him. His ambition to know these people was based simply upon his conviction that, better than most Americans, they knew how to get the most out of life—the most of pleasure, and satisfaction, and even, perhaps, of genuine usefulness. He had had to work too hard and too long, just to keep alive, to feed himself and keep himself clad, and a roof over his head, to cherish any illusions as to the inherent value of toil. Toil, labor, were right or wrong, according to one's objective.

He wanted now for a while, to play; later to do something useful, the main object of which would be to make more money. He would, he hoped, have money enough to satisfy his desires for the rest of his life, even if he never did another stroke of work. He probably would; he didn't, somehow, see himself in the role of a butterfly. But he did not do he was going to work, not work to live.

Now the train was out of the tunnel; people were standing in the aisle of the car; they were slipping along beside the long platform, with red carpeted porters racing along. He braced himself; he had come, after all, to the goal of his dreams!

Outside he turned, after telling a porter to take his bag and wait for him at the gate, to go back to the Delmar car—he ought to offer his services, though, he supposed, there'd be nothing for him to do. He found himself anticipated, though, already, half a dozen young men were hovering about Irene, who was holding a sort of court.

"Oh, hello, there!" she said. "There you are!"

The breath went out of him in a sharp gasp of relief. He—oh, that was what had been the matter with him! He hadn't been quite sure of her. He hadn't known how she would feel about him, back in New York, among her friends. One heard things—tales of girls like Irene, amusing themselves, taking some one up to while a few dull hours away, then dropping them. But her tone was the tone of the day before; she greeted him like an old friend.

Names were called; he found himself shaking hands mechanically, with one man after another. But only one stood out.

That was Ralph Blake. He was a tall, big man, of about Jim's own age, a handsome man, in his way, for all his beetling brows and his broad, pug-nacious, under-set jaw. He stared at Jim a moment, rather grimly; then held out his hand.

"Rehshaw?" He repeated the name half inquiringly. "Glad to meet you, Mr. Rehshaw. Trust Irene to turn up with some one!"

"It's clever of me, isn't it, Ralph, darling?" said Irene.

Blake was staring at her hands; she was still carrying her gloves.

"Where's your ring?" he asked, in a low, deep growl.

"What ring?" But her eyes followed him to her left hand, she laughed, delicately, lightly. "On that ring finger—don't I know it? You might ask Julius—she takes care of my things. She turned to him. 'Jim—you're to dine with us tonight—8 o'clock. Don't forget!'"

But he, too, was staring at her left hand. Ring! What right had Blake—

"Irene!" said Blake.

"Ralph!" said Irene, in mocking imitation of his tone. "Dear me, how trying you are!" She looked at Jim. "You know—Ralph thinks he's engaged to me!"

"I am," said Blake. "And I like people to know it!"

His eyes met Jim's, defiant, sneering, commanding. But just then Mr. Delmar swept Irene away.

"Come along—they may want to use the station again, you know, and I'm a stockholder," he said. "See you at dinner, Rehshaw!"

To be continued.

He found himself anticipated, though, already, half a dozen young men were hovering about Irene, who was holding a sort of court.

"Oh, hello, there!" she said. "There you are!"

The breath went out of him in a sharp gasp of relief. He—oh, that was what had been the matter with him! He hadn't been quite sure of her. He hadn't known how she would feel about him, back in New York, among her friends. One heard things—tales of girls like Irene, amusing themselves, taking some one up to while a few dull hours away, then dropping them. But her tone was the tone of the day before; she greeted him like an old friend.

Names were called; he found himself shaking hands mechanically, with one man after another. But only one stood out.

That was Ralph Blake. He was a tall, big man, of about Jim's own age, a handsome man, in his way, for all his beetling brows and his broad, pug-nacious, under-set jaw. He stared at Jim a moment, rather grimly; then held out his hand.

"Rehshaw?" He repeated the name half inquiringly. "Glad to meet you, Mr. Rehshaw. Trust Irene to turn up with some one!"

"It's clever of me, isn't it, Ralph, darling?" said Irene.

Blake was staring at her hands; she was still carrying her gloves.

"Where's your ring?" he asked, in a low, deep growl.

"What ring?" But her eyes followed him to her left hand, she laughed, delicately, lightly. "On that ring finger—don't I know it? You might ask Julius—she takes care of my things. She turned to him. 'Jim—you're to dine with us tonight—8 o'clock. Don't forget!'"

But he, too, was staring at her left hand. Ring! What right had Blake—

"Irene!" said Blake.

"Ralph!" said Irene, in mocking imitation of his tone. "Dear me, how trying you are!" She looked at Jim. "You know—Ralph thinks he's engaged to me!"

"I am," said Blake. "And I like people to know it!"

His eyes met Jim's, defiant, sneering, commanding. But just then Mr. Delmar swept Irene away.

"Come along—they may want to use the station again, you know, and I'm a stockholder," he said. "See you at dinner, Rehshaw!"

keep himself clad, and a roof over his head, to cherish any illusions as to the inherent value of toil. Toil, labor, were right or wrong, according to one's objective.

He wanted now for a while, to play; later to do something useful, the main object of which would be to make more money. He would, he hoped, have money enough to satisfy his desires for the rest of his life, even if he never did another stroke of work. He probably would; he didn't, somehow, see himself in the role of a butterfly. But he did not do he was going to work, not work to live.

Now the train was out of the tunnel; people were standing in the aisle of the car; they were slipping along beside the long platform, with red carpeted porters racing along. He braced himself; he had come, after all, to the goal of his dreams!

Outside he turned, after telling a porter to take his bag and wait for him at the gate, to go back to the Delmar car—he ought to offer his services, though, he supposed, there'd be nothing for him to do.
